The fourth century gnostic library, and explain the library recently discovered in Egypt shows that the redaction concept of a Christian fathers was fairly accurate in describing 1946 of the ancient gnostic library at Nag Hammadi, Egypt. "We were dependent on the writings of the early Christian fathers for our knowledge of gnosticism," Rev. MacRae said. In a lecture he gave, "Now we have 53 different documents written by the gnostics themselves—gospels, apocalypses, treatises, visions, poems, all kinds of writings," he said.

The manuscripts reveal that as the Christian fathers based their gnostics based on the possession of certain esoteric knowledge or "gnosis," he said, rather than on faith and obedience o law. They viewed the material world as evil, created by an evil god who was not the supreme God. They had the Genesis story, which was the act of creation myth reversed. "God was the sultan and the serpent was the hero," he said.

The Nag Hammadi writings give evidence that gnostics may have had a Christian Jeovah, he said. It probably encountered Christianity later and merely adopted some of its theology, he said.

Rev. MacRae is a professor from Harvard Divinity School and current executive secretary of the Society of Biblical Literature. He has worked on the gnostic Nag Hammadi manuscripts themselves.

Today at 4 p.m. in A-170 JKBA Rev. MacRae will discuss his translation of one of the manuscripts from the

Provo's financial worries:
Four Seasons, sewer plant

The Four Seasons project and a requirement to expand the sewer plant's effectiveness in meeting state and federal clean water standards are two pressing financial concerns of Provo city.

According to the city's consulting engineers, filling the requirements imposed on the plant would cost $24 million.

Dean Wheadon, director of water and waste water, said recently that consulting engineers should find a way to expand the plant for only $10 million because that is all the city can afford.

Bond issue
If the figure of $24 million could not be altered, a $6 million dollar bond issue would be required, he said.

To repay the bonds and the extra cost of operating and maintaining sewer rates would have to be raised about $8.40 a month, he added.

Prov's financial advisory committee on the proposed Four Seasons ski resort decided the city should finance the project.

Mayor Russell D. Grange said that before phase one of the project could be approved the developers of Four Seasons should escrow enough funds for its completion.

According to Grange, it was the unanimous decision of the financial advisers that the project would benefit the citizens of Provo.

Tentative support
The mayor and both city councilors support the project, subject to the results of environmental and sociological impact studies, he said.

The city is considering buying land north of the state hospital for use as a base facility for the Four Seasons project.

This land will be discussed with the State at the first opportunity as will some 40 acres of land east of the hospital the city recently realized that it owned.

Reunion scheduled

The Japan East Mission was inadvertently left out of the reunion notices. It will be April 4 at 7:30 p.m. at the Orem 37th Ward, 1260 S. 400 W.

The first U.S. patent issued over the signatures of Washington and Jefferson went to Samuel Hopkins, Burlington, Vt., July 31, 1790, for processing of leaching wood ashes to produce soap.

The Miracle of Forgiveness

President Kimball works closely with Church members who need help to understand their sins. In this volume he has had a rare opportunity to observe the causes and effects of wrongdoing, to display that proper balance of remorse and compassion to help them know and to encourage the wayward back onto the road of repentance. That opportunity, combined with his remarkable ability to write, born of his broad experience, makes him eminently well equipped to write The Miracle of Forgiveness.

"Can you hear in the back?" It was a long meeting, boring speakers after scout awards and M-Men and Gleaner Awards. The last speaker kept asking if the people in the back could hear him. Pretty soon a deacon on the front row stood up and said, "I don't know about them, but I can hear fine if someone wants to trade places."

You remember the great story of the elderly man who could see little and hear almost nothing and yet who was in a sacrament meeting every Sunday night. A cynic asked him, "Why in the world do you go? You can't hear and you can't see. What do you get out of it?"

And the old man smiled and said, "I go to show which side I'm on."

Science, religion require revelation, prof say

By REED HENDERSON
University Staff Writer

Knowledge of truth comes through identical processes regardless of the intellects or disciplines involved, according to a professor of pharmacology.

Dr. John Maxwell, professor at Sutherland Polytechnic Institution in England, expressed this view Tuesday at BYU in connection with the Commissioners Lecture series.

Dr. Maxwell said the search for truth and the reason behind it has gone on since man has been able to think and write.

"A definition of truth," he said, "is something that we can verify."

Intuition and insight

This process is called intuition, insight or perception, he said. He also explained how intuition or insight has played a part in science.

The scientist must base his work firmly on the basis of experimentation and the experience of others, said Dr. Maxwell.

He gave the example of John A. Widstoe, working with soil moisture but not being able to establish a general law for it. Widstoe found the solution after a visit to a temple.

Scientific discovery is not necessarily a simple, logical, intellectual process but depends on both logic and insight or revelation, he said.

Personal revelation

Only in our subjective faith can we be certain, said Dr. Maxwell. Certainty can only be obtained through personal revelation, he added.

There are certain requirements for a knowledge of truth, he said.

However, certainty of the future cannot be obtained through conventional intellectual processes, added Dr. Maxwell.

"Sometimes it is possible to prove the truth of a particular proposition before logical argument and evidence can verify it," he said.

Philosophy

Sometimes it is possible to prove the truth of a particular proposition before logical argument and evidence can verify it," he said.

The scientist must base his work firmly on the basis of experimentation and the experience of others, said Dr. Maxwell.

Personal revelation

Only in our subjective faith can we be certain, said Dr. Maxwell. Certainty can only be obtained through personal revelation, he added.

Foundations of religions

Turning to religion, Dr.

Maxwell said, the orderliness of the universe bears silent testimony to the existence of a creator.

Judaism built a hedge around the law to prevent changes when the Old Testament prophets died, he said.

Early Judaism contained all the necessary features of finding truth, including revelation. However, the loss of the Holy Spirit means there could not be certainty, he said.

The Islamic religion believed in revelation to a prophet and an individual but spurious traditions arose which led to confusion, explained Dr. Maxwell.

Turning to Orthodox Christianity, referring to all the traditional churches, Dr. Maxwell said they believed the scriptures were inadequate but they didn't need any more, creating a paradox.

Revelation is necessary by a prophet. There is a need for guidance, he added.

Revelation is essential for certainty in science, philosophy and religion.

Dr. Maxwell. A prophet is an authority figure.

Revelation is an essential part of the subject.

Soviet police chief cuts visit short

LONDON—After a day of angry demonstrations, former Soviet secret police chief Alexander Shelepin is cutting short his visit with British labor leaders.

Shelepin, the former head of the KGB, was meeting today in Glasgow with Scottish union leaders and then taking a place for Moscow from Prestwick airport, without returning to London.

Shelepin is a member of the ruling Soviet Politburo and now heads the Soviet trade unions.

On Tuesday more than 1,000 Jews and Ukrainian emigres bombarded his motorcade with bricks, milk cartons, bottles, umbrellas, and a bag of matchbox balls.

U.S. fuel used faster than found

WASHINGTON—The United States continues to use up oil and natural gas faster than new petroleum reserves can be found, two industry groups say.

Oil producers pumped three billion barrels out of the ground last year while two billion barrels of recoverable oil were added to known U.S. reserves, the American Petroleum Institute said Tuesday.

Fuel overcharges mount to millions

WASHINGTON—Half a million dollars here, $700,000 there. Little by little, federal investigators are rolling back a possible $1.97 million in fuel overcharges that may be inflating local electric bills.

An official of the Federal Energy Administration revealed Tuesday the first two refunds, totaling $492,916, by fuel oil suppliers who allegedly overcharged electric utilities. He said more refunds were forthcoming.

Egyptian requests meetings

(AP)—Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy says his government has asked the United States and the Soviet Union to begin preparations for reconvening the Arab-Israel peace conference in Geneva.

The pro-Soviet Middle East News Agency said Fahmy made the request to the Cairo ambassadors of the two super-powers, which are co-chairmen of the conference.

Israel and the United States have said they are ready for the talks to resume, and the Soviet Union has been urging a resumption for some time.

Fahmy did not mention a date for reconvening the talks. Last month the Egyptians called for an immediate resumption of negotiations after the collapse of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's bid for another Sinai agreement between Israel and Egypt.

Bike sale scheduled

Unclaimed bicycles will go to the highest bidder in an auction to be held by BYU Security.

The auction will be April 15 at 4 p.m. on the east side of the Administration Building at the loading dock, where 34 bikes will be sold. All the bikes have been held for more than 90-days while efforts were made to find the owners, according to Security. The bikes were collected by Security after having been left unattended on the campus.

The bikes range from 10-speeds all the way down to one-speeds. Three-speed bikes lead the pack with a total of 12, while 10- and one-speed bikes are close behind with 10 each.

Out of 34 bikes there are 20 different brands. Schwinn tallied the most with 10, while unknown brands make up the next largest group with three.

Father saves child, son drown

Puma said he was working in his yard when he heard the children shout that Jackie was in the canal and couldn't get out.

Puma dashed across the street to the canal and Jackie onto the bank.

"I was trying to revive him... trying to pump him," Puma said.

When the excited children finally told Christopher he was in trouble, Puma jumped back into the water.

"I came up with his body. He never consciousness," Puma said. "I think Chris heard children scream 'Get Jackie' and he jumped in."

Three rescue workers from the emergency squad department worked over Christopher. "We tried everything in our bag of tricks, nothing," said paramedic Louie Beam.

A WOMAN'S REACH
by Belle S. Spafford
"A woman's reach is bounded only by what her mind accepts and her heart allows. What is in her heart is life," Spafford, former general president of the Relief Society, writes with conviction, wisdom, and from experience of the challenges and rewards of reaching out to women today. Her message is always one of hope and encouragement, love and concern, with the firm knowledge that great blessings are within the reach of every woman. $4.95

The triumphant North Vietnamese and Viet Cong, now in a position to call the shots what is left of South Vietnam, may be willing and even eager to negotiate, on the assumption that they will make all the ground rules.

The Communist-led forces would likely see distinct political and propaganda advantages in talking soon, it would have to do with a government shorn of any trace of President Nguyen Van Thieu. In any case, the United States has little hope of having much to say about whether there are talks and what might be negotiated. The 1973 Paris accords that got the U.S. military out of Vietnam are, for all practical purposes, dead and the South Vietnamese that existed then has vanished.

Only 25 per cent of that South Vietnamese remains, and as stunning victory succeeds stunning victory for the Communist-led alliance, Saigon's politicians may be thinking the time is uncomfortably short to salvage something. They can't do from the wreckage. Obviously they cannot rely heavily on the military any more.

The ground is rapidly slipping from under Thieu, and even his own Senate seems to have turned against him. It begins to look as though the days in the presidency are numbered.

Saigon politicians are aware there are circumstances in which the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong would agree to talk short of total military victory. They know for sure also that this would require the political disappearance of Thieu and his close allies.

The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese are not now and never have been averse to talking about coalition, but it would have to be strictly on their terms now in view of their dominant military position.

They hardly can be expected to demand less than a dominant role for the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government — PRG — in view of the military realities. The PRG now is probably supremely confident it will eventually ride save the South. They could add a bit more to the outside world and in fact would be a good deal less expensive if the military conquest were a bit short of total.

A single adult male cougar may need a 100-square-mile territory all to himself.

Volunteers for Crisis Line provide community service

Crisis Line is a community service provided to serve residents of the Provo-Orem area. Individuals in need of counseling or someone to talk to may call Crisis Line at 375-5111, every evening from 6 to 12.

Crisis Line volunteers are trained before they can begin work. According to Janicee Pompa, one of the volunteers and a psychology major, after they are interviewed and screened, they attend six weeks of training, two hours once a week. They are taught effective listening techniques and through sample role playing they learn to handle real life situations.

Crisis Line volunteers also receive training from local professionals in the fields of mental health, psychology and sociology.

Miss Pompa said they are also encouraged to take courses in psychology and sociology, but it's not required.

Miss Pompa said, "I feel that we perform a very useful service to the community. Because not only do we provide a listening service, we also provide a referral service by directing people in need of various community services to the proper agencies. For instance, we helped one woman who was going to be evicted with two days notice to find a home."

Not to be confused with the Ombudsman project of the same name, Crisis Line began as a project of the Timpanogos Mental Health Center, but lack of funds have forced the organization into dependence on volunteer time and contributions.

ton announces

April Utah's genealogy month

Governor Calvin Rampton Monday announced April would be genealogy month in Utah. He called genealogy America's number one hobby.

"With 3,000 societies and 35 million people actively involved, genealogy is the nation's foremost pastime," declared Arlene Eakle, president of the National Genealogical Institute based in Salt Lake City.

In conjunction with the Nancy Poolman, instructional director for the National Genealogical Institute.

Club members will hear talk

Beta Alpha Psi students will hear a speaker from a national accounting firm at their spring initiation and awards banquet today.

Paul W. Wilson, partner in the Minneapolis-based national accounting firm of Ernst & Ernst, will address chapter members at the banquet at 7 p.m. in the Provo Holiday Inn.

Wilson has been with Ernst & Ernst since 1954. He is the author of an accounting text on internal control and has served as President of the Minnesota Chapter of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

Wilson is a University of Utah graduate and is currently serving as Minnesota state president.

month's theme, two seminars have been planned by the Institute for the Provo area.

The seminars are scheduled to take place April 12, at the Oakhills Ward Chapel, 921 Fir Ave., from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

"The Seminar topics will center around a unique research approach to tracing the pedigree," reported Nancy Poolman, the Institute's instructional director. "A new textbook will be introduced which outlines these procedures."

Miss Eakle is completing her PhD in British history at the University of Utah.

Completing her masters degree in French history at the University of Utah, Miss Poolman has served as a research analyst on the BYU genealogical center.

"An resurgence of interest in genealogy has been stimulated by the nation's bi-centennial," claims Miss Poolman. Governor Rampton said he feels that because of the many genealogical facilities in the state Utah should set aside a month for this purpose.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A prosecutor in John Connally's bribery trial said Wednesday $10,000 the former treasury secretary is accused of accepting "left footprints" right up to Mr. Connally.

"This cash, unlike most cash, left footprints right up to Mr. Connally," Sales, Assistant Special Prosecutor Jon Sales as he outlined the government's case shortly after a jury of seven women and five men was chosen.

But Connally's chief defense lawyer, Edward Bennett Williams, urged the jury to keep an open mind as the prosecution presented its case and promised to prove that Connally took nothing of value from anyone in the matter.

Williams took pains to separate Connally from the scandals that brought down the administration of former President Richard M. Nixon for whom Connally served as treasury secretary.

"This is not a Watergate case," Williams said. "John Connally was out of government. He had finished as secretary of treasury before the events of the so-called Watergate case took place."

Prosecutors in the Connally case are from the Justice and the Watergate special prosecution force.

Sale said the government would present a trail of testimony, hotel records, official appointment books, logs and bank records to prove Connally's old friend Jake Jacobsen gave him two illegal gifts of $5,000 and later tried to cover up with false testimony and new $1,000 bills intended to fool investigators.

Fraternity initiates 103 men

Phi Eta Sigma, national honor fraternity for freshman men, held an initiation for 103 pledges Wednesday night.

Dr. Robert H. Slover, faculty adviser for the fraternity, said Philip Flammer was the featured speaker at the event. Dr. Flammer is the associate director of the honors program on campus and he is a professor of history. He was awarded an embossed certificate and key from the fraternity, Dr. Slover said, and given an honorary membership in the fraternity.

Each pledge being initiated received a key and embossed certificate from the fraternity, Dr. Slover said.

How many pledges said Dr. Slover, and it also provides some tutorial services.

The initiates qualify for membership in the fraternity, Dr. Slover said, by attaining a 3.5 grade point average their first freshman semester. Dr. Slover said the organization does not have many social activities, but is mainly to recognize scholarship.

Rock dance team created at BYU

By J. J. SMITH
Universe Staff Writer

A new type of dance group has joined BYU's already-famous folk dancers and ballroom dancers—a rock dance troupe.

"Motion," a group of about 20 BYU students, is a synchronized rock dance team, created after the idea of other BYU dance teams, said Jan Bulkley, a junior member of the team from Birmingham, Mich.

Book review: pocket analyst

By JEANNE EDMONDSON

Why Am I Afraid To Tell You Who I Am?
By John Powell,
S.J. Argus Communications.
$1.95

A recent commentary in Newsweek Magazine reports that in times of affluence, people become more introspective and try to ferret out the "why's" of their actions. One of the products of the pre-recession economic boom was a flurry of do-it-yourself analysis guides.

Among the crop of recent drugstore paperback psychologists is John Powell, S.J., author of "Why Am I Afraid To Tell You Who I Am?" more recently, "Why Am I Afraid To Tell You Who I Am?" The automatic defensive reaction to these titles is to disavow the fear, but Powell claims it exists in all of us.

In "Why Am I Afraid To Tell You Who I Am?" he writes, "Approach me, then, with a sense of wonder, study my face and hands and voice for signs of change... but even if you recognize this, I may be too afraid to tell you who I am."

He adds that most of us have "imprisoning fears and self-doubts that cripple us and keep us from forward movement on the road to maturity, happiness and true love."

Powell borrows heavily from Eric Berne (Games People Play), A. H. Maslow and Sigmund Freud as he examines self-awareness, personal growth and interpersonal communication.

There is a real danger that the reader of this kind of work will use it as a manual for instant analysis. And Powell, like other writers of this genre, conveniently pigeonholes behavior by pasting labels on it that can be dangerously limiting for the ingenious reader.

Powell cautions, however, "we must be very careful that we do not assume the vocation of acquainting others with their delusions. It would be tragic in results."

But Powell still wants to pit his last chapter is a "Catalog of Games and Roles." All you need to do is check the list (it's alphabetical) to diagnose and treat your own or associates' behavioral problems. Interpreting from ways right to "the worrier" is included and a bright print of three shoes at the end of the chapter reminds us that if it fits...

"Why Am I Afraid To Tell You Who I Am?" needs to be understood and accepted for what it is—a necessarily superficial look at the complex problem of human relationship.

Festival of Arts to end with TV dramas

By MARILYN MOELLER

University Staff Writer

Two television dramas, "John Donne: Passionate Pilgrim" and "Brigham Young: The Westward Prophet," will mark the BYU-TV participation in the Mormon Festival of Arts. "John Donne: Passionate Pilgrim" will air Thursday at 9 p.m., and "Brigham Young: The Westward Prophet" will air Friday at 9 p.m.

Both of the programs were produced at KBYU-TV with the combined efforts of students and faculty from the departments of communications and drama and arts.

"It is not of passion that we should repent, but of its object," says John Donne, 17th century English poet and religious writer. The television special dramatizes the pivotal decisions that slowly help him transform his life from that of a lascivious student to that of a respected and prominent religious leader of England.

Dr. Golightly has attempted to create the visual personification of faith, said Miss Sneath, assistant director of the show. Dr. Max Golightly directed the show.

"It is good to believe in something other than yourself. Donne made that choice many times over in his lifetime," said Miss Sneath.

"His full, heady, passionate life showed that a creed of faith need not be a removal from life, but that we can grow through faith into it."

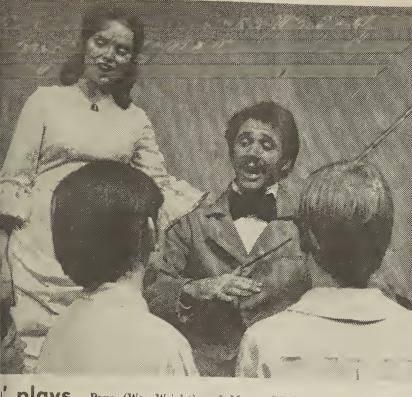

Presenting the work's an attempt to present a Mormon theme with professional television production standards. Nan Grass, a retired BYU English professor, spent a year researching the life of Donne before writing the script. All aspects of the production, from costuming to set construction, have also been very carefully researched, according to Miss Sneath.

"It is being submitted to the Public Broadcasting System (PBS) for their consideration," she added, "and we are hoping that it will be broadcast nationally." Dr. Metten, director of "An Enemy of the People," also directed the upcoming special on Brigham Young.

Commemorative of the westward trek of the 19th Century Mormon leader and colonizer, "Brigham Young: The Westward Prophet" will adapt original poetic material by S. Dilworth.

The dramatic readings follow the transformation of the man into a great leader and prophet, paying tribute to his decision to cross the American prairie.

'plays Papa (Wes Wright) and Mama (Vickie Julian) teach the children a song in "Papa Married A Mormon," a BYU dramatic production which will run through Tuesday.

TV show health care effort applauded

HARBURTT Column WriterORK (AP) — nders, Tuesday

dition of the

public TV show gives healthy signs this $6.5 million health care series may survive its very shaky start.

The show primarily was a straightforward study of how one family answered the modern-day question of where aged parents who can't cope by themselves should be cared for at home or put in a nursing home. It was an excellent program and far superior to the hour-long efforts seen on "Feeling Good" when it premiered last November, preceded by a heavy media campaign.

At that time the series seemed doomed. It looked like a badly conceived, poorly written variety show starring various Almonds of the Week. It did, though, eventually come in dull, copy-skits.

Viewers shunned it and it went off the air Jan. 29, after 11 shows, so that its producer, the Children's Television Workshop, could tinker with the format and attempt a comeback in the spring.

Part of the tinkering involved cutting the program to a half hour, sharply reducing the old information-through-skits approach, and hiring Dick Cavett at $4,000 a show to host 13 new "Feeling Good" episodes.

The new format only covers one subject a week, the topics ranging from teen-age drinking and drug use to recovery from heart disease.

The study of the aged and family attitudes toward them focused on the last months of Frank Tugend, a retired Scranton, Pa. coal miner in his 80s. CTW officials say he died late last year.

It brilliantly illustrated a common observation that those "who gave us strength when we were young can suddenly need it from us when they are old."

"Guten Tag," "Konnichiwa," "Ola," plus many other greetings in foreign languages are heard across the BYU campus from the 1,200 international students representing 70 foreign countries during this year's International Week.

BYU is not only a university rich in international flavor, but is recognized as having one of the largest international student bodies in the world.

The international students at BYU represent every continent of the world. Combining their skills and knowledge achieved in their native countries, they head for BYU in hopes of expanding their educational horizons.

During today and Friday, the international students will be displaying their talents and cultures in the Wilkinson Reception Center as part of International Student Week.

Reasons for attending BYU vary according to the different cultures being represented. Commenting on reasons for attending BYU, Pavil Grigor, senior archaeology from Iran, said, "I wanted to come to America and go to school, for my brothers were at BYU."

Regardless of the reasons the international student has for wanting to attend BYU, when he arrives, many new academic, social and cultural challenges await him. Coped off with the responsibilities of adjusting to the American way of living, which necessitates learning a second language.

Hans Noot, chairman of international week, said, "The purpose of the week is to help BYU maintain its worldwide image and create unity between the American culture and all other cultures throughout the world. We hope to learn to appreciate these cultures and understand the feelings of the students here at BYU representing the whole world."

BYU Army cadets participate in patrol work during spring camp.

Two days of Army orientation, patrolling, and navigating in 20- to 30-degree weather welcome approximately 240 BYU Army ROTC students to annual life skills training, said Chuck Hanes, Army ROTC Public Affairs Officer.

The event was a spring camp, organized to train third-year cadets in leadership tactics and to introduce first- and second-year cadets to annual life skills training, said Chuck Hanes, Army ROTC Public Affairs Officer.

The camp was organized into two battalions, the first consisting of MS-3's (third year students) and the second of MS-1's and 2's (first and second-year).

One of the main purposes of the MS-3's training, according to Hanes, was to prepare them for a six-week summer camp to be held in June.

Each cadet was put in the position of patrol leader or some other decision-making post during the two days of training in order to give him experience in leadership, Hanes said.

The second battalion was put through similar drills and training, but with less emphasis put on the leadership post.

"The MS-3's have signed a contract committing them to service," commented Hanes, "so we can push them a little harder and expect a little more from them as a result."

Tuesday's activities consisted of a two-hour session held in the barracks, giving a general overflow to the cadets of what the program was all about.

Thursday night the cadets donned field jackets and gloves to hold off a night raid patrol and reconnaissance patrol, said Hanes.

When the MS-3's go to summer camp they will be expected to perform drills in which they march for 48 hours straight, camping only for food and drink occasionally, explained Hanes. The purpose is to see how they can react under stress and strain.

Friday, the first battalion participated in a land navigation and a raid and ambush patrol. The second battalion had an escape and evasion drill during the same period of time.

Saturday the cadets cleaned the camp and their weapons, participated in some navigation drills and were on their way back to civilization.

U golfers win Fresno Classic

By GERRY MCKISSICK
University Sports Writer

The rich golf tradition of BYU was again shown to Northern California fans. For the fourth time in the past five years, the BYU golf team has won the prestigious Fresno State University Golf Classic.

The ninth rated Cougars won their first tournament of the year, and adding to the luster of the victory, Mike Brannan ended the two-year domination of University of Southern California's Al American Cup. After the individual competition of the $4-hole tournament by taking top honors.

Brannan, a freshman from Salinas Calif., was one of the most sought after junior players in the United States when the Varsity team arrived. He has many credentials to his name, the most impressive is his winning of the California State Amateur and the California State Open when he was a senior in high school. According to the BYU coaching staff, Brannan is one of the hottest prospects ever to enroll at BYU.

"My plan, after I saw the course, was not to try and overdo it," said Golf Coach Karl Tucker. "Tucker knew he had good putters and iron players and he said they never varied from their plan. According to Tucker, 'the boys did a great job.'

The Cougars made a big move on Friday, winning day competition. Brannan leading the way with two 69's to top the field by three strokes.

Saturday's competition had Brannan going head to head with second player Charlie Gibson, of Arizona State and Stadler.

Brannan took charge of the day's competition with two birdie putts on the first two holes. After that it was all up hill and down trodden for Gibson, whose drives had trouble staying on the fairway and Stadler whose putts were not dropping.

"I felt I was in command when we started and rolling in those first two holes gave me a real lift," added Brannan. "I just concentrated on playing my game. I knew that both Charlie and Craig would be outdriving me, but I wasn't worried about that."

BYU won with a 1,312 score. Arizona State had a distant second at 1,340. Fifth rated USC was never a factor in the team score. Brannan's score of 211 was three strokes below Jim Ruzicka's 214, of USC.

Outstanding Y athletes feted at awards dinner

Stepping to the microphone, Gary Scheide confessed what many of the BYU athletes must have felt Tuesday night at the annual Provo Downtown Coaches Club awards night.

"There really isn't a most valuable player of the team," he said, "it takes an effort by lots of people."

Scheide received the Crowd Pleaser Award at the banquet, which is given to the player who is most popular with fans. He was also named the outstanding football player for the year.

The dinner in the ELWC Skyroom saw all-conference athletes and outstanding players in each sport honored.

BYU Football Coach Ed Edwards, who has received numerous national awards during the year, received the Dale Rex Award, given to "the Utahn who has contributed significantly to amateur athletics." He remarked his surprise at the honor, praising the "effort, loyalty, support and hard work" of the team and of his assistant coaches.

Edwards has also received honors this past season from WAC coaches, WAC sports writers, United Press International, TV Guide and other organizations as an outstanding coach.

Steve Baker, BYU swim team captain for the past two years, who received the Vaughn R. Kimball Memorial Scholarship Award. He is the BYU athlete with at least two letters maintaining the highest GPA, 3.86.

The Outstanding Senior Award was given to Wayne Young, a Provo native who has risen from a high school sophomore. Young also shared another award, the Competitor Award, with Paul Cummings of the track team. Cummings, also named as the outstanding senior in track and field, is the NCAA male champion.

Four students received outstanding freshman awards: Mark Hansen outstanding wrestler, Jay Smith top gymnast, Dave White outstanding swimmer, Ron Hill best in baseball, Mark Berner in tennis and Mike Reid outstanding golfer. Awards were also given to Mark Handy as best basketball player and Vance Law as best freshman in basketball.

Raimo Pihl, NCAA decathlon champ, and football co-captain Larry Carr were also honored, along with retiring trainer Ron Kimball, who has been at BYU for 40 years.

Miller now in field for N.C. tourney

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A last-moment change of plans prompted Tom Miller, partially, that Jack Nicklaus recent success, into Johnson, N.C., to defend for the $225,000 Greensboro Open Golf Tournament.

Miller, along with Tom Weiskopf, fired surprise, late entries for the 72-hole test that begins Thursday on the hilly, 7,021-yard, par-71 Sedgewick Country Club course.

"Jack's going into the Masters a winner. I don't want to go in a loser," said Miller, who originally had planned to skip next week's Masters, the first of the year's four major events.

But the combination of Nicklaus' record victory in the Heritage Classic at Hilton Head Island, S.C. Sunday, plus Miller's poorest showing in two seasons contributed to a shift in plans.

Y trainer retires

By GERRY McKISSICK
University Sports Writer

As the road of BYU activity narrows for Rodney Kimball, he looks back on his experiences as memorable. Rod Kimball, head trainer for BYU athletics, will retire from his funding activity this year. The retirement will come effective the middle of June.

His retirement will be from all sports except basketball and baseball, which will be complemented with the two teams will keep him active in the school he loves, he said.

Asked the reason for his retirement, Kimball said, "The main one I guess is my age; I'm 65."

War field athletics

Kimball began his 33-year training career at BYU in 1947 and continued until 1962, when, he said, because of the war, athletics was phased out. He returned to the Y in 1947 after working a couple of years in industry and farming and has continued until now.

Kimball was born Feb. 13, 1918, in St. David, Ariz. In 1918 his family moved to Draper, Utah, where he grew up.

Kimball earned 10 high school letters in baseball, basketball, football and track while attending Jordan High School. After graduation he attended Brigham Young and attended three quarters of Utah State, after which he went to the German-Austrian Mission for two-and-a-half years.

Upon returning from his mission, Kimball entered BYU for a quarter. At BYU, Kimball met LeNeve Martin, from Cowley, Wyo., and on Jan. 2, 1934, they were married in the Salt Lake temple.

Returned to BYU

After their marriage, the Kimballs returned to BYU to begin his tenure as trainer of BYU athletes. "My first 18 years I was an undergraduate, finally getting my Bachelor's degree in 1955," said Kimball.

During his years in Provo, Kimball has been active in the church, serving a bishop of the Grandview Ward for five-and-one-half years, then on the First Ward of the Sharon West Stake for 20 years. In 1970, Kimball was asked to be the Patriarch of the Provo, Utah, North Stake.

Asked to relate some of his more memorable experiences Kimball replied, "the trips I have taken with the teams really stand out in my mind."

Kimball made three trips to Europe, one to the U.S. and baseball teams, two trips to South America and a trip to the Orient with the baseball team.

Memorable trips

The track trip Kimball remembers most is the trip which Marvin Roberson, now athletic trainer, and Willard Hirsch, and Sherald James, assisted track coaches, were members.

When asked what things stand out in his mind about Kimball, Hirsch replied, "There are two things that I think of. First, Rod has a great sense of humor. He likes to be around and boy did he jump out of his car fast, but he took it great."

Hirsch continued, "Rod would never criticize the coach. If a player did something wrong, he would say, 'It's for sympathy and blame his problem on the coach. Rod would not stand for that. He told the player that the problem probably was not with the coach, but with him."

"It is a rare thing today for people to support the coach, but Rod always did," said Hirsch.

Another person who holds Kimball in high regard is Sherald James. "Rod will stand out as the greatest spiritual leader I ever saw. I would like to see his history written as a dissertation assignment. In fact, I would like to do it myself," said James.

All-around healer

"He is not only healed an athlete physically, but also healed him emotionally and spiritually," said James.

According to James Kimball was a man who could fit in anywhere. When first Kimball was the only trainer BYU had and as more and more sports were added, Kimball didn't get a heavy burden, but Kimball was able to shoulder its load. James said, "He has a fine sense of the church standpoint ideally fit in with the non-member athletes. He was not pushy, but protected the feelings of anyone, regardless of their faith. He was a second father to the athletes," said James.

The Kimballs' have had 14 children, 12 are still living. Eight of the children are married and have given the Kimball's 34 grandchildren. The two youngest Kimball children are still in junior high and of the other 10, only one has not attended BYU. Four have graduated from BYU and one daughter is attending now.

Also-rans to decide ABA best

By The Associated Press

The Memphis Sounds and Virginia Squires, the teams with the worst records in the American Basketball Association, now get their chances to decide the best in the last two days of the regular season. That is, it's Virginia at Kentucky and Memphis at New York. Tonight New York will be at Virginia, and Kentucky at Memphis.

Should the Nets and Colonels tie, they will make the title game Saturday night, that would hold a one-game playoff for the East title in Louisville Friday night.

The Sounds lifted their record to 27-54 and dropped Virginia to 15-67. The ABA record for losses, trouncing the Squires 121-102 Tuesday night.

The Nets and Colonels, meanwhile, were idle, but in other ABA games, the Denver Nuggets, from Indianapolis, Pacers 126-115, the Sounds of St. Louis 122-109, and the San Antonio Spurs whupped the San Diego Conquistadors 130-113.

George Carter scored 24 points, 10 in the third quarter, and reserve Collis Jones contributed 17 points and 11 rebounds as the Sounds raced past the hapless Squires. Dave Twardzik led Virginia with 18.

Mervin Barnes, St. Louis' sensational rookie, scored 26 points, grabbed 19 rebounds and had four blocked shots, and Freddie Lewis also had 26 points in leading St. Louis past Utah 125-111. The Sounds' standout rookie, collected 20 points, sharing team scoring honors with Ron Boone.

Co-ed team wins meet

Steve Hansen and Vicki Hansen are the new 4-A Co-ed racquetball team champions. However, the humor did not come easy as they had to battle all the way down to the wire playing a tough third-round match against Terry Eshenroder and Linda Williams, the defending champions. Mark Philbrick and Marilyn Willard, in the quarter-finals,

As if this weren't enough they had to face Randy Hansen and Sally Swarthout in the finals. Randy had to beat his brother and reigning 3-A singles champion. Again, after going the third time of three games for the third time in the tournament, Steve and Vicki Hansen emerged as the new 4-A racquetball team.

The Atlanta Braves have had another member of the same Hansen family involved in the finals. This time it was a sister Linda and her partner, John Meyers, who emerged victorious after defeating Mike Capers and Jackie Marklin in two straight games, for the 3-A crown.

For relief pitching you can't beat the Los Angeles Dodgers. As a matter of fact, you can't beat the Los Angeles Dodgers, period.

Mike Marshall throws bars at the press but won't give up, but he's doing good to hit, and as a result the defending National League champions are sitting on top of the world and could be sitting on top next year.

The strongest team in the strongest division in baseball, it's likely that if the Dodgers win the West, they'll find little opposition in the NL playoffs again, either from St. Louis or the pre-season host in the East.

Pete Rose and his Cincinnati Reds teammates have declared all-out war on their division colleagues and are unmercifully, or even impossible, for the Dodgers.

It took a iron-man performance by Marshall, the league's Cy Young winner to subdue the talented Reds in the homestretch of the 1974 season.

That type of pitching—along with two of the best starters in the game—that gives the Dodgers

Dodger manager Walt Alston (left) will be trying to guide his team in defense of the N.L. title while Cincinnati, led by Sparky Anderson (middle) figures to be the biggest threat. Danny Ozark's Phillies (right) are a long shot in the N.L. East.

The defending champion and the Braves got Dave May in return for Aaron's services. Dodgers are so good, they're a logical choice to repeat.

With Garvey and Wynn experiencing an kind of normal season, their offense is about as perfect as you can get. Top-to-bottom strength, home run blasters, speed and singles hitters, this team appears to be manager's dream.

That's a falloff in performances from Garvey and Wynn, and the likes of Ron Cey, Joe Ferguson, Bill Buckner, Dave Lopes, Willie Crawford, Bill Russell and Steve Yeager will provide Manager Walt Alston with nights.

The Dodgers' hitting is formidable, too, with Most Valuable Player Steve Garvey and Jimmy Wynn in the middle of a line-up that produced more runs than any other National League team in 1974.

The Reds, who dominated the West for several years, no longer find themselves in that position despite the most impressive array of front-four hitters in the game—Rose, Joe Morgan, Johnny Bench and Tony Perez.

At Cincinnati, the rub is the pitching. After 19-game ace Jake Bigham and 17-game winner Steve Dalkowski, there's a big dropoff in talent among the starters. The bullpen is in the good hands of Clay Carroll and Pedro Borbon, though neither boasts the accomplishments of their predecessors.

The Atlanta Braves have emerged as challengers and the San Francisco Giants and Houston Astros have power in their line-up, though the infield, shortstop Dave Concepcion and pitcher Tom Morgan.

Cincinnati is one of the best teams in baseball, but still may not be good enough to catch the Dodgers. If the Reds have not been the best front four hitters in the game, but an incomparable defensive team anchored by two Gold Glove winners in the infield, shortstop Dave Concepcion and pitcher Tom Morgan.

But it was a lack of pitching depth last season that caused the Reds to lose 18 games to Los Angeles and cost them their divisional title.

The Braves lost the greatest home run hitter in the history of the game but still boast a powerful offense. The aging Hank Aaron jumped to the American League to play with the Milwaukee Brewers depth and a strong leader. The Astros will miss Don Wilson, who died in a tragic accident during the offseason.

The St. Louis Cardinals will be the best team in the West, last winter, acquiring Alan Foster, Sonny Siebert and Rich Folkers from St. Louis. It won't hurt, but it won't help, either. The Padres are slightly improved this last year, but not that much to lift their concrete weight out of the Western basement.

St. Louis may not be remembered as a team for all seasons, but they may be remembered as the National Champions. For winning the 1975 Led by Bob Gibson and Lynn McGlothen, the Cardinals have enough arms on the staff to boast some of the best pitching in the East.

The Cards' strong points, though, are not offense and blazing speed, led by base-stealing king Lou Brock.

When Brock gets on base, the Cardinals can score runs in a variety of ways. Either he steals second, or Ted Clevenger advances him with a sacrifice, and Reggie Smith drives him in.

Hitting, as in past years, is still Pittsburgh's strongest point with slugger Willie Stargell the key element. The pitching isn't as bad as some think, though, and could be the most underrated area of the team with starters like Jerry Reuss, Jim Rooker, Dock Ellis and Ken Brett around.

If Tom Seaver returns to past form after an off-year, the Mets will be a force to be reckoned with.

Mike Caldwell, John

D'Acquisto, Jim Barr, and Ron Bryant provided the giants with reasonably good pitching and a staff that perhaps could be better than last year's 3.78 ERA would indicate.

Doug Rader's back at Houston and the colorful third baseman will be needed to display his aggressiveness again. The Astros better stay loose because there's too much competition for them in the West.

Lee May has been traded and his absence leaves a hole in the line-up. The Houston pitching staff, with Larry Dierker, Dave Roberts and Mike Marshall, is still a few players away from a championship season.

Montreal traded away most of its stars in the off-season and took a big step backward in the process. But the Expos are saved from finishing last. The Houston pitching staff, with Larry Dierker, Dave Roberts and Mike Marshall, is still a few players away from a championship season.
